A NEW SENATOR.

Louisiana's Antislavery Governor, Successor to Senator Caffery.
Ex-Governor Murphy J. Foster, who was recently chosen senator by the Louisiana legislature, is a cousin of Senator Donelson Caffery, whom he will succeed. The two men are strongly opposed in their political faith, however, the latter being a Republican and the former a lifelong Democrat.
Senator Elect Foster is a native of Franklin, La., and is 51 years old. He was educated at Washington and Lee university and was graduated in law from the University of Louisiana. He has long taken an active part in state politics.

SENATOR MURPHY J. FOSTER.
politics. From 1880 to 1892 he represented St. Mary's parish in the state senate. In the latter year he was made candidate for governor on the antislavery ticket. He led the campaign against that rich and powerful concern known as the Louisiana State lottery and was elected by a large majority. He served as governor until April of this year, when his term expired and he entered the race for the junior senatorship. His term expires in 1901.

Why "Sappho" With One P?
Why do the French people spell "Sappho" with a single "p"? This seems to contradict Mark Twain's famous saying that foreigners always seem to spell so much better than they pronounce. Dr. Johnson explained such idiosyncrasies in his own characteristic fashion—"So far as I can see, sir, foreigners are fools!"—London Globe.

After three days and nights I suffered from an attack of cholera, brought on by eating cucumber. Says M. B. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa, "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by W. E. Warren & Co.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Dishes For the Week—A Pleasant Day Window Effect—Household Hints.
Comparatively few housekeepers appreciate the amount of nutriment that is wasted with every pair of chicken's or fowl's feet that is thrown away. A practical test of the value of these usually despised portions is to boil one pair in a saucepan by themselves until the bones fall apart, and then note the quantity of jelly thus obtained. The feet are the most easily cleansed of any portion of the bird, because the thick outer skin can be removed entire, like a stocking. To do this the feet should not be allowed to boil, as the skin will adhere to the bones, but they should be plunged into hot water, not boiling, and allowed to stand for two or three minutes. The skin will then readily loosen at the top and draw off to the claws. The latter should be cut off.

To make chicken jelly clean and disjoint a chicken, cut it into small pieces, break the bones and place it with the feet, prepared as described above, in a saucepan. Add one pint of cold water for every pound of chicken. Heat slowly, simmer until the meat falls from the bones. Strain, let it stand until cold, remove the fat and season it with salt, pepper and a small piece of lemon peel. Parsley, celery and bay leaves may be used for flavoring if they are desired. Turn into a mold and stand in a cold place to harden. This can be used for broth or soup by thinning slightly with boiling water.
To make chicken soup follow the above directions. Remove the meat when it has fallen from the bones, strain, add a tablespoonful of rice, a small piece of onion, the seasoning bits of the meat and cook until the rice is done. Remove the onion and serve with croutons, sippets or toast.
Toasted bread is cut one-third of an inch thick, dried slowly, browned quickly and served hot. It may be served as water, milk or cream toast. A poached egg may be served on any of these.
To make French toast plunge a slice of bread into milk and then into an egg, the white and yolk of which have been beaten together thoroughly and seasoned with salt. Fry a golden brown in butter.

Bay Window Drapery.
The bay window of the illustration is simply but effectively draped. The curtains are of plain Brussels not finished on the edge with an insertion and ruffle of lace. These curtains are not continuous, but are shirred upon two parallel brass rods. Another method of hanging the double curtains is to cut them apart, sew the edge to each and then sew the tops together so that the edge of the ruffle shall come even with the plain edge on the opposite side. This can then be shirred upon a single rod. The manner in which these curtains are draped back adds to the effective treatment of the entire window. Small cords and tassels of white cotton are generally used for draping lace curtains.—Housekeeper.

A PLEASANT EFFECT.

Household Hints.
Ice can be kept well even during the warmest weather. Wrap it in several thicknesses of flannel and place in the ice chest on four crossed pieces of wood so that no water will accumulate under it.
Ants can be driven away if the places they frequent are sprinkled with oil of pennyroyal.
The smell of onions may be removed from the breath by eating parsley moistened with vinegar.
Mildew stains can be removed by rubbing plenty of soap and powdered chalk on the garment and placing it in the sun. It may be necessary to repeat this operation.
Houses may be kept comparatively cool during the summer months by throwing the windows and blinds wide open in the early morning hours and then closing the blinds for the rest of the day.

Water Ices.
Water ices, which are simply a mingling of fruit juices, water, sugar and whites of eggs, are even more likely to please than ice cream at this season of the year. To make a delicious pineapple ice you will need two large pineapples, one and one-half pounds of sugar, one quart of water, one tablespoonful of gelatin and two lemons. Pare the pineapples and grate them. Make a sirup of the sugar and water by boiling them five minutes; then add the gelatin, which has been dissolved in cold water. When the sirup is cool, pour it over the fruit to which has been added the juice of the lemons. Let it stand an hour or more, then strain and freeze. In freezing turn the crank very slowly at first.

To Fight Moths.
Camphor is much better than moth balls, although a bit more expensive. Every woolen garment that is put away should be taken out and aired and beaten at least twice a month during the hot weather. Insect powder dusted thickly in closets will send a family of the little millers flying out into the fresher air, where they can easily be caught and killed. Wrapping woolen things in old newspapers is a good plan.

A Skater's Daring.
Few feats of skating have ever exceeded the exploit of one of Napoleon's officers performed shortly after the fight at Jena in 1806. The emperor dispatched an officer to Marshal Mortier requesting him to seize certain important towns without delay. When the officer arrived at the mouth of the Elbe, where the river is 7 1/2 miles wide, he was threatened with serious loss of time. The river was just covered with ice, therefore to row over was out of the question. He could not cross by the nearest bridge without going 20 miles out of his way on roads heavy with snow, and he grumbled the time that would thus be wasted. So he resolved to skate across the thin, freshly formed ice. He had tried walking he would have sunk at once, but by skimming along on his skates at the top of his speed he got over the river both dry and unharmed. By this daring if dangerous deed he saved six hours. At what Napoleon made him do and won great credit for his bold and clever exploit.

Grafting the Chestnut.
At the Connecticut station the best time for grafting the chestnut has been found to be from May 15 to June 15. Whip grafts on small stocks made the best union. Cleft grafting is desirable for large stocks. Foliage should be left around the graft to protect it from the sun's rays. When the grafting is skillfully performed, it can be reasonably expected that about 50 per cent of the scions will grow.

Brief Mention.
The highest percentage of loss of sheep and cattle for the year ending March 31 was reported from the south and southwest, where less attention is paid both to food and shelter than in the regions where more severe winter weather is expected and prepared for.
There is no use pulling fodder simply to get roughage for horses and mules, says Southern Cultivator. There are so many hay grasses that make this kind of food cheaper.
The quantity of cottonseed meal or of linseed per cow should not usually exceed two to three pounds daily if fed for long periods, according to Rhode Island station authorities.
A Louisiana farmer finds tomatoes, bush beans, cucumbers, potatoes and radishes the most profitable crops for truck growing. He grows the Chatterbox radish and White Spine cucumber and uses northern seed for everything except onions.

Cosmopolitan Sheep.
Some sheep will live and thrive anywhere. They are cosmopolitan, as we say, at home everywhere. The merino is such a sheep, forming the bulk of the stock of Germany, France, Spain, Australia, South Africa and South and North America, and the prominent British breeds enjoy the same happy adaptation to circumstances, having been companions of the merinos wherever they have been carried and thriving with equal facility.—Sheep Breeder.

The English Sparrow.
A law has just been enacted in France, which is to go into effect July 1, exempting the sparrow from the protection which is given to insect eating birds, and declaring it a bird of extermination against them.

APPROPOS OF WEDDINGS.
An Effort to Revive the Bridal Wreath of Orange Flowers.
There are already many fashionable weddings on the tapis. Admirers of the good old customs are making a bid to revive the wearing of the bridal wreath, immortalized in song and story. A wreath of orange flowers or myrtle is assuredly a fitting and picturesque crowning for a fair face, but it has a rural significance that will scarcely impress the city bred woman, even on her bridal morn or eve. It is even to be feared that the bridal veil will be long succumb to fashion's changes. The veil is a relic of the "care cloth" which our Saxon forefathers were wont to hold over the bride's head to hide her blushes, a custom that began to part with its significance when the veil was thrown back and arranged so that it falls from the head down over the skirt's train.

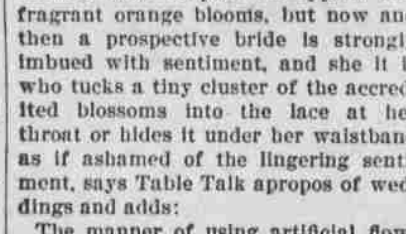

The bridal veil is usually fastened to the collar with a jeweled clasp or held in place by a silver or gold comb studded with precious stones, and these trinkets have eclipsed the typical and fragrant orange blossoms, but now and then a prospective bride is strongly imbued with sentiment, and she it is who tucks a tiny cluster of the accented blossoms into the lace at her throat or hides it under her waistband as if ashamed of the lingering sentiment, says Table Talk apropos of weddings and adds:
The manner of using artificial flowers on lace and net fabrics for evening toilets is distinctly novel. A corsage of pale green chiffon has Russian violets and their foliage appliqued over it. The stitches are so minute as to be invisible, and the violets look as if dropped on the filmy net by a careless hand. The sleeves of the bodice are of green chiffon. In similar manner a white mousseline de soie gown, sent over by a famous French modiste, has rich pink silk and velvet petal roses applied in graceful spraylike designs over skirt and bodice. A clever brush finishes the shadings of rose petals and tender green foliage, so that one can barely detect where the applique work ends and the painting begins.

The New George.
Johnny was worried about Washington's greatness. He turned to his mother and said, "Washington's all right, but Grant's more like me."
"How is that?"
"Well" (throwing out a diminutive chest), "he could tell a lie when he had to."
"But, Johnny, you never tell lies, do you?"
"Why, mamma, you know I do. You always find me out."
A moment of silence.
"Mamma."
"Well, Johnny."
"When you were a little girl, didn't you ever tell a lie?"
Mamma was stumped. Then she answered, "I always tried to tell the truth."
"Well, why don't they celebrate you?"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE COMMON THINGS OF LIFE.
The common things of life give
To art its highest way;
The things that in the life we live
Are with us every day,
And never wrought the loom or yet
Whose work true honor brings
But that his fabric's base was set
Firm on life's common things.
For these dear things to eyes that see
Not common are not plain;
Beauty to its supreme degree
Lives in their homely grain,
And when God's sweet-toned seraph hand
Creation's mystery sings
It tells how we and sky and land
Were made life's common things.

TO THE DEAF.
A rich lady cured of her Deafness and Nerves in the head by Dr. Nicholson's Artificial Ear Drums, gave $10,000 to his Institute, so that deaf people unable to procure the Ear Drum may have them free. Address N. C. Nicholson, The Nicholson Institute, 750 Eighth Ave., New York

"Now in the first place," began the Chicago baseball team—"the Chicago baseball team," "if you are going to tell us why our team didn't land in first place, it's a waste of words. We know all about it."

It Happened in a Drug Store.
"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a good recommendation for the remedy." It is for sale by W. E. Warren & Co.

The New George.
Johnny was worried about Washington's greatness. He turned to his mother and said, "Washington's all right, but Grant's more like me."
"How is that?"
"Well" (throwing out a diminutive chest), "he could tell a lie when he had to."
"But, Johnny, you never tell lies, do you?"
"Why, mamma, you know I do. You always find me out."
A moment of silence.
"Mamma."
"Well, Johnny."
"When you were a little girl, didn't you ever tell a lie?"
Mamma was stumped. Then she answered, "I always tried to tell the truth."
"Well, why don't they celebrate you?"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

THE COMMON THINGS OF LIFE.
The common things of life give
To art its highest way;
The things that in the life we live
Are with us every day,
And never wrought the loom or yet
Whose work true honor brings
But that his fabric's base was set
Firm on life's common things.
For these dear things to eyes that see
Not common are not plain;
Beauty to its supreme degree
Lives in their homely grain,
And when God's sweet-toned seraph hand
Creation's mystery sings
It tells how we and sky and land
Were made life's common things.

"Now in the first place," began the Chicago baseball team—"the Chicago baseball team," "if you are going to tell us why our team didn't land in first place, it's a waste of words. We know all about it."
